2015 college football national championship highlights

There's only one game left in college football, but it's a stupid game. And you won't have to miss a minute if you have the right app or streaming service. (Photo credit: Jamie Lamor Thompson/Shutterstock) After three dozen bowl games filled with calendars between December and New Year's Day, we're left with Alabama defending its national title against Clemson in the college football championship game this Monday (January 7) from Santa Clara, Calif. The action begins at 8..m ET. And you don't have to be near the TV to see if the Crimson Tide or the Tigers appear on top. The rise of mobile apps and streaming services means you no longer have to glue your eyes to the TV just to watch your favorite college football teams work. Fire the network's mobile app that carries the game you choose—or, if you don't have the cable, your favorite streaming service—and you can track every last touch and touch. How to Watch Since we are talking the national championship game, make sure you have access to ESPN. The self-proclaimed world leader in sports aired the championship Monday night. The easiest way to watch big games is to activate the WatchESPN app, available for both Android and iOS. ESPN's streaming app also works with Amazon Fire TV, Apple TV, Chromecast, PlayStation 4, Roku, and Xbox One. There is a catch, however, that even a wide top-of-the-line recorder will find difficult: You'll need to log in with the login information from your cable provider to stream either game, so wire cuter will have to take a different route. And that route is the top streaming service. Fortunately, all the big players - DirectTV Now, Hulu Live, PlayStation Vue, Sling TV and YouTube TV - include ESPN in their package. Prices start at $25 a month for Sling TV's Orange package, which features ESPN. Elsewhere, you'll pay $40 to $45 for a package that includes access to ESPN. Fubo.TV doesn't include any ESPN channels, and with the national championship broadcast there, it's a big miss. Four of the five streaming services listed above offer free seven-day trials (PlayStation Vue is the exception, at five days). So in theory, you can start testing You while the Championship January 7 kicked off and canceled shortly there afterwards. When to watch this is when you can catch the remaining bowl game. National Championship Game: January 7, .m, Alabama vs Clemson (ESPN) PS4 Games: How Our Employees Favorites Stream to TwitchMost Anticipated Games The Ohio State University Buckeyes have claimed seven national championships on the gridiron. The team won the title of college football in 1942, 1954, 1957, 1961, 1968, 1970 and 2002. Paul Brown led the longtime Midwest power to its first national title. Hall of Famer Woody Hayes then led the school to five championships during his term in Columbus from 1951 to 1978. Jim Tressel coached the show's most recent winners and was permanently successful for Urban Meyer. Since the team began competing in 1890, the Buckeyes have been unbeaten 10 times and won 34 Big Ten titles since entering the conference in 1913. The University of Florida has won 39 national team championships. Individual athletes have won 275 individual NCAA championships. The University of Florida is widely recognized as having a highly competitive and accomplished athletic program. The Gators' 20 national championships since 2006 are the most of any school in the Southeastern Conference (SEC). According to the University of Florida, the Gators have won titles in 14 different team sports. As of 2018, baseball, outdoor athletics and tennis are the most recent national champions, winning titles in 2017. Gainesville School came close on a number of other occasions and remains the only school to finish in the top 10 in the last 30 annual national sports rankings. Photo: Wikimedia by Thecoiner We love watching the seasons change: Winter turns into crisp spring days, spring gives way to the heat of summer, summer melts into the college football season. Wait... You don't know college football is one of four seasons? It's a shame for you. Ok, we're kidding, it's really fall, but college football gets us all in our fall feeling for other reasons. Paganism, rivalries, tailgates - they're all part of the main course leading up to dessert: Bowl season and march to the championship. While some schools have been greedy over the past few years, racking up national championships like Thanksgiving parties, others have taken a bit of backseht. But, don't sleep on them: There are plenty of schools out there with trophy cases full of national championship hardware. The Crimson Tide have a dozen, but Fighting Irish is not far behind. An Ivy League school boasts 28! And, a school in Peace Garden State is the most decorated among FCS candidates. The question is: Just how champion-crazed are you? Can you determine the team based on the number of trophies it has? From one championship to nearly 30, we have arranged a test to celebrate the best of the sport.
